CAA to offer assistance to cyclists

BIKES In one more sign that drivers also ride bikes and many cyclists have a driver's licence, the Canadian Automobile Association's South Central Ontario branch is now offering roadside assistance for cyclists among its 1.8 million motoring members.

Modelled on a CAA program in British Columbia, www.caasco.com/automotive/roadside-service/caa-bike-assist.jsp. Bike Assist will offer on-the-spot repairs to cyclists anywhere in the organization's coverage area.

Ashbridge's Bay Serve's up

ADRIEN VECZAN/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Alpha Conteh returns a serve yesterday in a friendly beach volleyball game at Ashbridge's Bay Park. Torontonians endured another sweltering day yesterday, and the heat isn't expected to let up today. But cooler temperatures are forecast for later this week.

Flotilla fallout

Harper spared controversy after Netanyahu cuts visit short

Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu cut short his visit to Canada yesterday to deal with fallout from the flotilla attack off the Gaza Strip — sparing Stephen Harper some difficult political navigation.

Harper issued a terse statement of "regret," distinguishing Canada's pro-Israel Conservatives from broad international condemnation of the Jewish state after a botched Israeli raid left at least nine Palestinian activists dead.

But the two leaders cancelled a joint news conference in Ottawa, relieving Harper from having to weigh in further on the latest Middle East flash point — a tough job for any world leader and one that has caused Harper headaches in the past.

"I'm sorry this has coloured this (visit), but delighted you were able to join me at least last night and today, and we've had some important talks, so welcome to Canada," Harper told Netanyahu in his Parliament Hill office.

"Canada deeply regrets this action, this loss of life and the injuries that have occurred. Obviously, we'll be looking in the days that follow to get all the information we can get," Harper said, as he left it to his guest to explain his country's actions. THE CANADIAN PRESS

'Soldiers had to defend themselves'

- Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said his soldiers were simply defending themselves when they were attacked on a sixth aid ship, after peacefully diverting five others to Israel's port in Ashdod, where their cargoes were cleared.
- "They deliberately attacked the first soldiers who came on the ship," he said. "They were mobbed, they were clubbed, they were beaten, stabbed ... Our soldiers had to defend themselves, defend their lives, or they would have been killed."

Hundreds march in Toronto

CONSULATE Several hundred people staged a noisy but peaceful protest late yesterday afternoon outside the Israeli consulate in Toronto.

Waving placards and Palestinian flags, the protesters chanted "Free free Palestine" as they showed their opposition to Israel's deadly commando raid on ships off Gaza.

Palestinian groups have said the ships were carrying aid, while Israel has said the flotilla was not a humanitarian mission.

"Our colleagues, our fellow peace activists have been killed today, and our hearts are broken," said Sandra Ruch, Canadian co-ordinator of the Gaza Freedom March.

Following the demonstration the group marched through downtown Toronto to Yonge-Dundas Square before dispersing.

Ruch said a friend was with the flotilla and she hasn't heard from her and doesn't know if she's safe or not.

The UN Security Council met in an emergency session yesterday to discuss the raid that left nine people dead. THE CANADIAN PRESS

50

"These are people from 50 different countries around the world," said Sandra Ruch, Canadian co-ordinator of the Gaza Freedom March. "So this is an act of terrorism by the country of Israel to many, many countries."

Carbon tax needed: Official

Environmental commissioner says improved transit is key to a green future

It's not easy being green, but Ontario politicians have to stop being afraid of road tolls and a carbon tax if they want to help tackle global warming, Environmental Commissioner Gord Miller said yesterday.

Miller's annual progress report on greenhouse gas reductions said the province was losing ground in the battle against climate change, and called for a comprehensive assessment of how road pricing can help lower emissions that contribute to the problem.

The transportation sector is the single largest producer of greenhouse gas emissions in the province, and money raised from road tolls and congestion fees could fund more public transit and make it a more attractive option for commuters, said Miller.

"Our report documents the significant environmental, social and economic benefits that many other jurisdictions across the globe have realized by putting a price on road use," he said.

Road tolls

- Environmental Commissioner Gord Miller said that given the public's attitude, he wasn't surprised the Liberal government shot down the idea of road tolls when he raised it in a special report last December.

Reopening of Humane Society shelter delayed indefinitely

ANIMALS The reopening of the Toronto Humane Society's River Street shelter, scheduled for today under the terms of an April legal agreement, has been postponed by the new THS board of directors.

Marcie Laking, a board member, said "it would be irresponsible to open the shelter" before the new directors obtain detailed information about the organization's finances and meet with executive director Garth Jerome. Laking also said renovations to the shelter are not finished and that the THS lacks accreditation from the College of Veterinarians of Ontario.

"The Toronto Humane Society gets one reopening, one chance to prove ourselves to the public to be a leader in animal welfare," said Laking, a former THS animal care worker. "We're not going to open the doors until we know that everything on our end is done so that the THS can function efficiently."

Laking said the board has not yet decided when the shelter, closed since April 12, will reopen. She said it would be better able to assess the state of the THS after discussions with Jerome scheduled for tomorrow.

To quit, or not to quit?

Duo urges Facebook users to log off

"Quit Facebook" was a trending topic on Twitter yesterday as tens of thousands of users claimed they were ready to abandon the popular social networking site over privacy concerns.

But more users aren't going anywhere, even if they acknowledge the concerns raised by the two Toronto men behind Quit Facebook Day.

Most of the chatter on Twitter was about how users had no intention of participating in the campaign. "It's Quit Facebook Day," tweeted the user ExpertParalegal. "Right. I'm not quitting coffee either."

"It might be 'Quit Facebook Day' but there's no way i'm quitting," wrote DanNSimms, "especially as I like seeing how fat everyone's got since they left school."

Co-creator Matthew Milan said he never expected the idea would go viral and put a dent in Facebook's membership numbers. But he feels the process was a success since it got people talking about the site's privacy policies and the consequences of putting personal info online.

"Right. I'm not quitting coffee either."
Twitter user ExpertParalegal

"I'm not really interested in getting people to quit every online service out there — I'm actually a very heavy consumer of social media myself," he said in an interview as the number of users pledging to opt out of Facebook surpassed 30,000. "I just think they should be asking for what they feel is fair and respectable from organizations they give their data to." THE CANADIAN PRESS

SUMMIT There are some jobs police won't do at the upcoming G8 and G20 summits — and for those duties there will be 1,100 security guards provided by a private security firm.

Contemporary Security Canada has posted job openings for security screeners, who will be using metal detectors to vet people going into the security perimeters in Toronto and Huntsville.

Guards are expected to work from June 15-28, clocking as many as 120 hours.

Meanwhile, a director with a Toronto security firm said a work order has been distributed that requires security guards be posted at GO Transit stations "all across the line." TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

T.O. songwriter's tune takes 2nd at Eurovision song contest

MUSIC Toronto rapper-songwriter Evren Ozdemir says he feels like he's just won a silver medal at the Olympics of the music world.

The Turkish-born, Toronto-raised musician penned the lyrics to We Could Be The Same for Istanbul rap-rock band maNga, which came in second at the splashy Eurovision Song Contest in Oslo, Norway, Saturday.

"It was one of the wildest things you could ever see," Ozdemir, 32, said yesterday in a phone interview, describing a room full of 25,000 people waving flags and dancing.

Ozdemir, who has written tracks for several TV series and fronts a hip-hop/pop band called Evren, was childhood friends with the frontman of maNga and did a guest verse on the group's debut album. Last February, the group invited him to pen its first-ever English-language song for Eurovision. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Exhibit of ramshackle huts set up by MSF builds awareness

HEATHER BUCHAN
for Metro Toronto

"Danger. Mines," read the sign on a tree facing the sidewalk at Bloor and Christie, much to the surprise of passersby, who stopped to stare.

A few feet away, ramshackle huts made from bed sheets and scraps of corrugated metal stood in the shadow of an apartment building across the street.

A tent with food rations and another with medical supplies lay just beyond.

Apartment residents stood on their balconies and watched the foreign scene below, reminiscent of television images of refugee camps in faraway lands — not something you see in Canada.

MICHAEL BLATCHFORD/FOR METRO TORONTO

A mock sign posted on a tree at Christie Pits as part of a mock refugee camp set up by Doctors Without Borders.

But this past weekend, it was all very real in Christie Pits Park, where international medical relief organization Doctors Without Borders (Médecins Sans Frontières) set up the free, interactive, awareness-raising exhibit called Refugee Camp in the Heart of the City.

42M
There are 42 million people worldwide who are refugees or internally displaced within their own countries due to conflict.

"We've had a lot of people come through who were refugees and said, 'That's exactly how it was,'" said Wendy Rhymer, a Toronto nurse and midwife who has done four tours with MSF since 2007.

The purpose of the exhibit is to raise awareness not only of the plight of people all over the world, but also the work that MSF does.

Medical professionals from all over Canada volunteer for missions abroad where they provide emergency medical relief as well as vaccination campaigns, water and sanitation improvement, maternal care, and a host of other health-related services.

If you missed the exhibit in Toronto, you can still catch it this coming weekend in Waterloo from June 3-6 at the Waterloo Public Square. For more information, call 416-964-0619.

Death sentence a minor concern now: Rushdie

FATWA Acclaimed British author Salman Rushdie said yesterday the death sentence imposed on him by Iran's late leader no longer affects his daily life, but the issue still hasn't gone away.

Rushdie commented on the fatwa in Toronto, where he was teamed up with Nobel Peace Prize laureate Eli Wiesel for a discussion on freedom of speech and human rights.

"It doesn't really affect my daily life particularly any more, I'm happy to say," Rushdie said.

"It's been well over a decade really since that was an issue, but it bubbles up every so often."

The latest surfacing of the issue came over a call from an Australian member of Parliament to bar the entry of musician Yusuf Islam, formerly known as Cat Stevens, who is on a tour.

Islam endorsed the fatwa, which was issued by Ayatollah Khomeni for Rushdie's 1988 novel, The Satanic Verses, a book many Muslims considered blasphemous. THE CANADIAN PRESS

The urinals at The Honest Lawyer restaurant in Hamilton sparked a public outcry and letter-writing campaign.

Restaurant kisses its dicey urinals goodbye

CAMPAIGN A urinal shaped like a woman's wide-open mouth has been flushed out of the men's room of a Hamilton eatery following a nearly year-long public outcry.

The glossy, red-lipped loo at The Honest Lawyer restaurant sparked a letter writing campaign that attracted almost 1,100 people, including Ontario's NDP leader and Hamilton's mayor.

Some people argued the "Kisses! urinal" — manufactured by Bathroom Mania! in the Netherlands — was art or just a joke.

The Woman Abuse Working Group, a coalition of 24 organizations, disagreed and led efforts to oust what it considered to be an offensive water closet.

Lenore Lukasik-Foss, chairwoman of the group, said yesterday she's "shocked, excited and thrilled" that it's gone. "It's not a joke to pee into a woman's mouth," she said.

The group was concerned about women's safety and the message the urinal, which had been there since the restaurant opened in February 2007, sent to men in the bar.

"They're drinking and maybe hoping to connect with a special person and then they're going to the bathroom and peeing into a woman's mouth," said Lukasik-Foss, who's also director of the Sex Assault Centre.

Former PM hid dealings: Report

Oliphant blasts 'inappropriate' relationship

A damning report by a public inquiry into the dodgy dealings between Brian Mulroney and Karlheinz Schreiber concludes their financial relationship was "inappropriate."

The inquiry, led by Justice Jeffrey Oliphant, also says the former prime minister's failure to disclose his dealings with the shady German-Canadian businessman was inappropriate.

And, Oliphant says, it's clear Mulroney did his best to hide the fact that a relationship existed at all. He accepted payments in cash. He drafted no formal agreement. He issued no invoices and he squirrelled the money away in a safe and a safety deposit box for years.

While yesterday's report finds that Mulroney didn't strike a formal deal with Schreiber while he was prime minister, he did reach an agreement and accepted cash while the was a sitting MP.

"The conduct exhibited by Mr. Mulroney in accepting cash-stuffed envelopes from Mr. Schreiber on three separate occasions, failing to record the fact of the cash payments, failing to deposit the cash into a bank or other financial institution, and failing to disclose the fact of the cash payments when given the opportunity to do so goes a long way, in my view, to supporting my position that the financial dealings between Mr. Schreiber and Mr. Mulroney were inappropriate," Oliphant said.

"Simply put, Mr. Mulroney, in his business and financial dealings with Mr. Schreiber, failed to live up to the standard of conduct that he had himself adopted in the 1985 ethics code."

SEAN KILPATRICK/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Justice Jeffrey Oliphant

Mulroney has admitted receiving $225,000 in cash-filled envelopes from Schreiber during surreptitious exchanges in hotel rooms in the early 1990s — and keeping it secret for years. But he insisted it was for legal consulting work, not for lobbying government as Schreiber claimed.

Oliphant repeatedly said he didn't accept Mulroney's version of events.

The report is not likely to provide much satisfaction for long-suffering taxpayers who have shelled out $14.1 million for the commission of inquiry and another $1.8 million to cover Mulroney's legal fees. Oliphant was precluded from making any findings of criminal or civil liability.

Top to bottom, Gulf food chain in peril

Independent scientists and government officials say there's a disaster we can't see in the Gulf of Mexico's mysterious depths, the ruin of a world inhabited by enormous sperm whales and tiny, invisible plankton.

Researchers have said they have found at least two massive underwater plumes of what appears to be oil, each hundreds of feet deep and stretching for miles. Yet the chief executive of BP PLC — which has for weeks downplayed everything from the amount of oil spewing into the Gulf to the environmental impact — said there is "no evidence" that huge amounts of oil are suspended undersea.

163M
Possible amount of oil, in litres, that may have spilled so far into the Gulf of Mexico.

BP CEO Tony Hayward said the oil naturally gravitates to the surface — and any oil below was just making its way up. However, researchers say the disaster in waters where light doesn't shine through could ripple across the food chain.

"Every fish and invertebrate contacting the oil is probably dying. I have no doubt about that," said Prosanta Chakrabarty, a Louisiana State University fish biologist.

On the surface, a 24-hour camera fixed on the spewing, blown-out well and the images of dead, oil-soaked birds have been evidence of the calamity. No major fish kills have been reported, but U.S. federal officials said the impacts could take years to unfold.

"This is just a giant experiment going on and we're trying to understand scientifically what this means," said Roger Helm, a senior official with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Mulroney hit hard, but not KO'd

NationalReport
Lawrence Martin

metronews.ca/nationalreport

Brian Mulroney's reputation took a further blow yesterday with the release of the Oliphant Commission report. He was hoping for a slap on the wrist. Instead he got a whack across the jaw. But there was no knockout.

Everyone already knew the former prime minister had acted inappropriately in accepting cash payments from wheeler-dealer Karlheinz Schreiber. Mulroney has already admitted this and conceded it was a serious error of judgment.

But what we wanted to know and what we didn't find out is why the secret payments were made. Until that mystery is solved — and it likely never will be — this case is unsolved. The extent of Mulroney's transgression, his degree of culpability, cannot be answered.

Mulroney had testified that he took the cash to lobby international leaders for the sale of light-armoured vehicles on behalf of Schreiber's clients. But the Oliphant report drove holes through that theory as it did some of the other Mulroney testimony on the case.

One of the most devastating parts of the report concerned Mulroney's statements regarding his relationship with Schreiber in 1996 legal proceedings on a related controversy. Justice Jeffrey Oliphant cast doubt on the integrity of the testimony, and added that Mulroney's later attempts to justify what he said were "patently absurd."

Justice Oliphant's findings on that testimony could be interpreted as an allegation of perjury. The report also found that Mulroney had violated his own government's code of ethics in his business dealings with Schreiber.

What now? Yesterday's report will likely be the end of it. No major new revelations on the story are likely to be found. Journalists have been tracking it for two decades. The RCMP investigated the related Airbus matter for several years. And this commission took its turn and the questions remain.

One of the strange things was that Mulroney himself encouraged Stephen Harper to call this probe. That's something a guilty man would not readily have done. He likely felt that, as was the case with the Airbus inquiry, he would be vindicated.

Yesterday's report was by no means vindication. But after a few days of bad headlines, Mulroney will be able to finally move on. He may in fact be guilty of worse transgressions than have been revealed. But to a certain extent, justice has been done.

It's about reputation. Mulroney cares about reputation as much as anyone else, even more so. For years, his reputation has suffered on account of his Schreiber dealings, serving to diminish his accomplishments as prime minister. This shadow on his legacy is warranted. But the shadow is not the substance.

Worth mentioning

UN, groups pressure nations on climate

A new round of climate negotiations kicked off in Germany yesterday with squabbling over money and procedural questions that could threaten progress at the two-week UN conference.

UN climate chief Yvo de Boer and activists from groups including Oxfam, Greenpeace, and WWF pressured industrial nations to live up to their promises of financial aid to poor countries as about 4,500 participants from 182 countries gathered in Bonn.

Concrete financial contributions must "show that developed countries are ready to deliver what they promised five months ago in Copenhagen," de Boer told reporters, referring to the disappointing climate summit in the Danish capital in December.

Industrial nations at Copenhagen pledged $30 billion in aid from 2010-12 to help poorer nations start environmentally-friendly development programs and adapt to the worst consequences of climate change.

However, de Boer and non-governmental organizations say developing nations remain skeptical if the money will come through and if it is additional or simply relabelled funds already pledged for other purposes.

"The finance part has not been solved," Greenpeace expert Wendel Trio told The Associated Press.

Oxfam said it is becoming clear that rich nations want to hand out much of the money as loans instead of grants, thereby saddling developing nations with new debts for a problem largely caused by industrial countries.

"It's like crashing your neighbour's car and then offering a loan to cover the damages," Oxfam's Antonio Hill said in a statement.

The European Union tried to dispel such doubts, stressing that the $3 billion US per year it promised in Copenhagen have been confirmed by finance ministers, and about 70 per cent will be handed out as grants.

"This is fresh money in any case — we are not recycling money," Spanish climate change official Alicia Montalvo said on behalf of the EU presidency.

India's economy rebounds 8.6%

ECONOMY A rebound in manufacturing and recovering farm output drove India's quarterly economic growth to 8.6 per cent, the best in two years as Asia's third-largest economy returns to pre-crisis levels of expansion.

Growth for the financial year ended March was 7.4 per cent, beating a government forecast of 7.2 per cent, officials said yesterday. The acceleration in the January-March quarter is likely to add to pressure on the central bank to raise interest rates to contain inflation.

Jazz facing turbulence

Flight attendants vote to strike

Jazz Air flight attendants have voted in favour of a strike to back negotiations for a new contract to improve their salaries and working conditions.

The Canadian Flight Attendants Union said yesterday the cabin crew for the airline could go on strike, or be locked out, as early as June 16.

"Some Jazz flight attendants are trying to make a living on $22,000 a year," said spokeswoman Jennifer Kalmar, the union's western vice-president.

"That's completely unacceptable, especially for people who are responsible for passenger safety on board our aircraft," Kalmar said in a statement.

Jazz pilots have voted to strike as early as June 13, potentially affecting travellers' summer vacation plans.

Negotiations with the help of a federal mediator are set to resume with the pilots tomorrow.

Jazz was spun off in September 2004 as part of the court-supervised restructuring of Air Canada.

Business in brief

RAW MATERIALS Statistics Canada's raw materials price index rose 1.7 per cent between March and April, driven largely by higher prices for metals and fuels, particularly crude oil. Year-over-year, raw material prices rose 17.3 per cent between April 2009, when the Canadian economy was still in a deep recession, and April 2010. Statistics Canada also reported that its industrial product price index rose 0.3 per cent in April.

Your Money

Dating on a dime this summer

AlisonOnMoney

Alison Griffiths
metronews.ca/alisononmoney

Summer is the best time to ramp up your social life. Why? Because the now accessible great outdoors allows you to date on a dime without feeling guilty about being a tightwad.

A romantic candlelight dinner with cocktails and wine in the city can easily set you back $200. But the romance factor increases logarithmically when you set the table yourself under the stars. Cold roasted chicken, veggies and dip, a french bread stick and a bottle of wine tastes like it cost a million bucks with the constellations overhead.

ALISON'S MONEY RULE
Feeling the budget pinch doesn't have to crimp your social life. Learn to date on a dime.

Here are a few date-on-a-dime picnic tips:

- Scout your location first. Not everyone's knees and rump are made for an evening on the ground. Many parks have picnic tables but also look for cover in case of rain.
- If you are pressed for time buy a grocery store roasted chicken and cut it up — the cost isn't much different than cooking a bird from scratch.
- Buy plastic plates and glasses rather than disposable and you can re-use them for years.
- Candles with lids will last through many dinners. Another option is a collapsible or telescoping camping lantern.

Marian Hossa and Ben Eager scored 28 seconds apart late in the second period, Antti Niemi had 32 saves and the Chicago Blackhawks beat the Philadelphia Flyers 2-1 last night for a 2-0 lead in the Stanley Cup finals.

After a wild scoring display when Chicago won the opener 6-5, Game 2 featured tightened-up defences with goalies Niemi and Michael Leighton of the Flyers stepping up.

"Antti been great all year and all playoffs and he really held us in there at the end," said Eager. "They had some opportunities but Antti was there to shut them down."

Then the Blackhawks struck quickly, not once but twice, to send the United Center into a frenzy.

"I have that in my game," Eager said of his snapshot from the right side that beat Leighton off the rush. "I've been shooting the puck well in practice. I got a piece of that and a bounce and I'll take it."

Chicago Blackhawk Marian Hossa fights for the puck against Philadelphia Flyer Matt Carle in Game 2 of the NHL Stanley Cup final last night at the United Center in Chicago.

Chicago has won seven straight playoff games and 10 of 11 to move within two victories of its first Stanley Cup since 1961.

The Flyers got right back in the game when Simon Gagne scored as a power play was about to elapse at 5:20 of the final period.

But Niemi fought off a late flurry — 14 of his saves came in the final period when Philadelphia had a 15-4 shots advantage.

Morrow lifts Jays to win

MLB RESULTS

Rays 2 Blue Jays 3

Among all the talented young pitching the Toronto Blue Jays have, no one has an arm as electric as Brandon Morrow.

The 6-3 right-hander has the stuff to overpower and dominate, which is exactly what he did last night in a 3-2 victory over the Tampa Bay Rays. Morrow took a no-hitter into the sixth, allowed just a run on three hits and two walks over seven innings, and generally cut up the struggling American League East leaders to open what is a crucial stretch for his team.

The Blue Jays, who won their fourth straight and improved to 31-22 before a disappointing crowd of 11,335, play the Rays (34-18) twice more at home before hosting the New York Yankees for three.

Sports in brief

TENNIS Sam Stosur sidelined Justine Henin 2-6, 6-1, 6-4 in the fourth round yesterday, ending the four-time French Open champion's streak of 24 consecutive victories at Roland Garros. Stosur's opponent in the quarter-finals will be top-ranked Serena Williams, who beat Shahar Peer 6-2, 6-2. Another four-time champion, Rafael Nadal, advanced by beating No. 24-seeded Thomaz Bellucci 6-2, 7-5, 6-4. Nadal has yet to drop a set this year and will next play fellow Spaniard Nicolas Almagro, seeded 19th.

BASEBALL Here's a chance to buy tickets to a guaranteed perfect game — the one Roy Halladay already threw. The Florida Marlins will begin selling today unused tickets to the game in which the Philadelphia Phillies ace pitched the 20th perfect game in major league history, a 1-0 victory over the Marlins Saturday. All tickets will be regularly priced.

NBA The Toronto Raptors are adding P.J. Carlesimo to their coaching staff. Carlesimo, who was most recently the head coach of the Oklahoma City Thunder, will be an assistant to Jay Triano, a team source confirmed yesterday. Carlesimo made headlines in 1997 when he was choked by Latrell Sprewell during a practice.

A merchant's spirit in St. Lawrence

Small Business City

RAFAEL BRUSILOW

Toronto's St. Lawrence neighbourhood is home to a wide assortment of small, independent business (many housed in St. Lawrence Market, left). Odysseas Gounalakis, right, inset, owner of Scheffler's Delicatessen and Cheese, says he loves the frantic pace and the people he meets in the market.

Toronto's birthplace and always-beating heart, St. Lawrence is where the industrious merchant spirit of old times still thrives.

When the British bought what is now modern-day Toronto from the Mississauga First Nation in 1788, the area was already known as a meeting point for merchants — a fact that is still true today and most readily visible at St. the Lawrence Market's wealth of food sellers' stalls and shops.

Often referred to as Old Town, the web of streets and parks south of Queen Street East and running between Yonge and Parliament streets houses an eclectic mix of restaurants, design stores, art galleries and pubs whose soul all leads back to the St. Lawrence Market on Front Street.

On a busy Saturday at the market, Scheffler's Delicatessen and Cheese (93 Front St. E., Upper Level 7) owner Odysseas Gounalakis cuts fragrant cheese by hand while his staff dart around helping customers.

'A microcosm of Toronto'

He bought the business in 1991 after spending almost 10 years working in the market building itself and says he loves the frantic life of the market and its open, outgoing ambiance.

"I like the atmosphere of the market. In ancient times, the market used to be an educational place — Socrates even taught in the market. You find it the same here, you can talk about food, creative things, politics, anything you want. It's like a little microcosm of Toronto and even on a slow day the place is alive," Gounalakis said.

Robert Biancolin co-owns Carousel Bakery (93 Front St. E., Upper Level 42) with his brother Maurice and says the melting-pot nature of the market is not only it's most enduring quality but a blueprint for the city at large.

"So many people connect with each other here — it's really bringing cultures together. The market was the anchor for a lot of the change in this city," Biancolin said.

To the north of the neighbourhood, condominium developments which sprung up along Richmond and Adelaide streets have breathed new life into the entire area, turning it from a checkpoint for tourists heading to the St. Lawrence Market into a vibrant, thriving neighbourhood all its own.

Michael Duggan, owner of Duggan's Brewery (75 Victoria St.) and former president and founder of the Mill Street Brewery, says there's still plenty of room for growth throughout the area.

PHOTOS: RAFAEL BRUSILOW/FOR METRO CANADA

Top: Michael Duggan, the owner of St. Lawrence's Duggan's Brewery, is also the founder of Mill Street Brewery. Bottom: Some tasty treats from the St. Lawrence Market's Carousel Bakery.

"It's in transition. I remember this area 10-15 years ago when businesses where moving out and there were no condos — it was almost a ghost town. Now with all the condos moving in it's brought a lot of business back," Duggan said.

Duggan feels the healthy mix of residents, businesses and tourists makes the neighbourhood attractive to do business in.

"There's a real neat mix of high density residential and businesses here and it's kind of got the best of all worlds. My biggest thing is connecting with people and there are so many people who live and work down here that its good for business," Duggan said.

Tabata brings back the intensity

CELIA MILNE
for Metro Canada

No pain, no gain. That's the basic premise of a new exercise method lunging its way into the mainstream. Tabata is a type of high-intensity interval training that only takes four minutes. It's tough, but after it's over, your body continues to burn calories.

"I'm excited about it. It helps melt the butter," says Jane Clapp, head trainer and founder of Urbanfitt, who brought Tabata to her fitness studio in January.

Tabata and other interval training methods are rendering steady state cardio workouts — such as going for a long, slow run — passé.

"You see people on the elliptical machine for 30 minutes reading a magazine. That drives me crazy," says Clapp. "If you can read a magazine while working out, you are not working hard enough. That will not help you see results and you won't be present in your body. You also won't get the post-workout calorie burn."

The Tabata Protocol is named after Dr. Izumi Tabata, a former researcher at Japan's National Institute of Fitness and Sports in Kanova. It was first used to train Japanese Olympic speed skaters. The idea is to do an exercise all-out for 20 seconds, then rest for 10 seconds, and repeat this process over and over again for four minutes.

The exercises can be almost anything that uses the whole body — think of old-school calisthenics — burpies, mountain climbers, jumping jacks, hop lunges, push-ups, squats, even skipping.

"You are forcing the body to adapt again and again, versus using the treadmill for 30 minutes where there is only one adaptation phase," explains Clapp. You're also recruiting large muscle fibres that otherwise sit idle, and making them work hard.

The results? You burn a lot of fat and sugar, and feel pumped afterwards.

"It helps people get their mojo back," says Clapp. "You get blissed-out after — there's a huge endorphin rush."

A study in the Journal of Physiology found that one and a half hours of high-intensity interval training per week was just as beneficial as four and a half hours a week of traditional, steady-state exercise.

A typical class at Urbanfitt might be four minutes of Tabata, some resistance training, another Tabata set, more resistance training, a third Tabata set and then a third set of resistance training. Many of Clapp's clients are working moms who have little time and lots of weight to lose. They love Tabata's efficiency. "I like that it stokes the furnace in people," she says.

3 ways to do lifts at home

CELIA MILNE
for Metro Canada

If all this talk of lifting weights has you intimidated, you can start doing some simple lifts at home. According to Harvard University's HealthBEAT, lifting weights improves muscle strength, bone density, and balance. Here are three exercises you can do at home using a chair that has armrests.

1 SEATED BRIDGE: Sit slightly forward in the chair with your hands on the armrests. Slowly raise your bum off the chair until you're almost standing. Slowly sit back down.

2 TRICEPS DIP: Put your chair against a wall. Sit in the chair and put your feet together flat on the floor. Put your hands on the armrests of the chair. Lift yourself up a few inches by straightening out your arms. Slowly let yourself back down.

3 STANDING CALF RAISE: Stand behind the chair and hold onto the back of it. Raise yourself up on tiptoe, then lower yourself back down.

For each of these exercises, do eight to 12 repetitions. Rest and repeat the set.

High intensity exercise has more benefits: Study

CELIA MILNE
for Metro Canada

PROGRAMS Here's more evidence that higher intensity is better in exercise. In a recent study, exercise physiologist Gordon Bell from the University of Alberta recruited 128 physically inactive but healthy men and women between the ages of 27 and 65. He divided them into two groups: one group walked and the other did a traditional aerobic fitness program.

After six months, those in the fitness program enjoyed greater health benefits than those who merely walked.

The fitness program had greater benefits in terms of blood pressure and peak oxygen intake — a way of testing breathing to see if the body has adapted well to the stress of exercising.

Bell said that a walking program is still a healthy thing to do, and more effective in one way — people are more likely to stick with it.

How to be the best single person you can

Advice books focus on finding the right relationship

The J Spot
Josey Vogels
metronews.ca/thejspot

There are a gazillion books aimed at helping couples get their relationship in shape. And, it seems there's a gazillion more to help single people meet someone to have a relationship with (so they can then eventually buy the first gazillion books when said relationship eventually goes to pot).

But it seems to me there are very few books focused on how to be the best single person you can be. Which is too bad, because we all know that the only way to find a relationship is to be the best you can be when you're in your best shape as a single person.

And when I say "in shape," I'm not talking endless squats and a high-fibre diet (though getting in physical shape and feeling healthy does help you feel good about yourself). I mean getting in shape emotionally and mentally.

This can be tough in a society that acknowledges every stage of coupledom — anniversaries, moving in together, marriages, kids — but rarely celebrates the joys or marks the milestones of single life.

FLICKR: JVOANN

Enjoying a nice candlelit dinner at home is a great way to get your single life in better shape.

A study that came out a few years back said that, today, most typical urban-dwellers cohabited an average of nearly four years and were married about 18. The rest of the time — an average of about 19 years — they were dating or alone, with no steady companion.

Given we spend as much of our lives being single as we do partnered, surely being single deserves a little more respect. So, while it's hardly a match for all the advice out there on how to get your relationship in shape, here's my advice for getting your single life in shape:

- Enjoy a Saturday night at home alone with a movie and a glass of wine without feeling like a loser.
- Host Christmas in your own place with your own friends.
- Relish the fact that you get the whole bed to yourself.
- Enjoy a solo candlelit dinner at home.
- Treat yourself to dinner at a fancy restaurant.
- Travel on your own. You always meet more people this way.
- Enjoy the fact that you can make plans without having to consult anyone but yourself.
- Remind yourself that you get to be the "cool" aunt to your nieces and nephews without having to foot their college tuition.
- Stay out all night without having to check in.
- Realize that you're just as imperfect at being single as most people are at being in relationships.
- Remind yourself that most married people have just as many moments where they feel like they wished they were single again as you wish you were in a relationship.
- Know that you're happier on your own than in a mediocre relationship.

Laser Vaginal Rejuvenation® Surgery

Laser Labia Reduction Surgery

Thick or large labia is caused by a number of factors, including aging, childbirth and genetics. This problem may prevent women from wearing certain clothes that could reveal their condition. Tenderness and irritation of the labia from constant contact or friction can be a source of remarkable discomfort, making biking, exercising and even sexual intercourse unpleasurable. It may adversely affect self confidence and self esteem. Laser Labia Reduction sculpts the labia minora to make them smaller, shorter, more balanced or less pronounced. This not only creates a more aesthetically pleasing appearance, it can also reduce or eliminate the discomfort and pain associated with larger labia minora.

Laser Vaginal Tightening Surgery

With age, trauma and the intense stress of childbirth, many women experience weakening of the muscles in their vagina. Sexual gratification has been scientifically proven to be intimately linked to the level of friction created. But with vaginal relaxation, the ability to create friction is dramatically reduced, thereby adversely affecting sexual gratification. Laser Vaginal Tightening Surgery is a surgical procedure that corrects "looseness" to enhance sexual performance and may also treat stress urinary incontinence.

Toronto Cosmetic Clinic is the only medical office in the city associated with The Laser Vaginal Rejuvenation Institute of Los Angeles and is certified to perform the proprietary procedures, LVR® and DLV®. A Ukrainian company claims to have created jelly beans that to produce perfumed farts.

Better smelling farts

A Ukrainian perfume company claims to have invented a jelly bean capable of producing perfumed farts.

The candies are being produced in a number of varieties, from generic "fresh office" to specific smells which mimic famous perfumes.

After being eaten, they produce what the company call "exit aromas" — which are said to be as effective as air fresheners.

A spokesman for the company, Dmitry Chistilin, told Metro about the product line. "We are creating a fart with a smell of Calvin Klein," he said.

"It's the same principle as air freshener."
Dmitry Chistilin, company spokesman

"I ate (one) with an exit aroma 'fresh office.' It's the same principle as air freshener. There are no digestive disorders after it and the candy works for about two hours."

The company is now attempting to patent the technology, he added.

One pack of the candy will cost around $3.25 US. The different aromas offered so far include Sensation, Clara, and Calvin Klein. There are plans to produce more than 35 smells in all. It's not known when the candy will be available in Canada.

Getting employees fit

How much money would it take to get you to lose some serious weight? $100? $500?

Many employers are betting they can find your price. At least a third of U.S. companies offer financial incentives, or are planning to introduce them, to get their employees to lose weight or get healthier in other ways.

"There's been an explosion of interest in this," said Dr. Kevin Volpp, director of the University of Pennsylvania's Center for Health Incentives.

Take OhioHealth, a hospital chain whose workforce is mostly overweight. The company last year embarked on a program that paid employees to wear pedometers and get paid for walking. The more they walk, the more they win — up to $500 a year.

Anecdotal success stories are everywhere. Half of the 9,000 employees at the chain's five main hospitals signed up, more than $377,000 in rewards have already been paid out, and many workers tell of weight loss and a sudden need for slimmer clothes.

"Food is more difficult than tobacco."
Steven Kelder, professor

But will this kind of effort really put a permanent dent in American's seemingly intractable obesity problem? Not likely.

"It's probably a waste of time," said Kelly Brownell, director of Yale University's Rudd Center for Food Policy and Obesity.

Brownell's assessment is harsher than most. But the science seems to back him up.

Only about 15 to 20 U.S. studies have tried to evaluate the effect of financial incentives on weight loss. Most of those studies were small and didn't look at whether such measures worked beyond a few months. None could make conclusions about how much money it takes to make a lasting difference for most people. Perhaps the largest effort to date was an observational study by Cornell University. It looked at seven employer programs and the results were depressing: The average weight loss in most was little more than a pound.

Sure, there are grounds for optimism. Smaller experiments report some success. And other studies have shown promising results against tobacco. One study published last year in the New England Journal of Medicine, co-authored by Volpp, found that cash rewards of a few hundred dollars nearly tripled quit-smoking rates.

One problem: "Food is more difficult than tobacco," said Steven Kelder, an epidemiology professor at the University of Texas School of Public Health.

While cigarettes can be addictive, people don't need to smoke to live, and advertising and clean-air restrictions curb tobacco's presence. People must eat, however, and sugary drinks and fatty snacks are everywhere, Kelder and others said.

Health officials lament that more than two-thirds of American adults are overweight and one-third obese, and lecture on fat's role in deaths from diabetes, heart disease and other conditions.

In a campaign led by Michelle Obama, federal officials are emphasizing several approaches to slim the nation. Food companies, worried about potential anti-obesity rules and laws, have publicly endorsed the first lady's message and recently pledged to offer lower-calorie foods, change recipes and cut portion sizes.

While watching to see if foodmakers follow through, some experts remain fascinated by the idea of using economics to get people to eat better and exercise. Sales taxes have been used to drive up the cost of cigarettes and drive down smoking rates, and some are pushing for similar taxes on soda.

A guide for Type 2 diabetes

With the number of cases of Type 2 diabetes increasing at an alarming rate in Canada and North America, it's crucial to control weight and blood sugar levels to deal with the disease, says Rick Gallop, author of a new cookbook on the subject. # Great for the grill

Barbecue is about more than just burgers and hot dogs

Hot sun, cool drinks and something cooking on the grill: It doesn't get much better than that.

But grills are about a lot more than just burgers and steaks. To truly take advantage of warm weather, make sure you also give your starters and desserts the barbecue treatment.

Start with succulent grilled eggplant. This recipe calls for the eggplant to be sliced, grilled and rolled up around a generous amount of feta cheese and tomato. Note that eggplant soaks up oil like a sponge, so if you're watching your calories, go easy on the oil when you're brushing it on.

Beef isn't the only kind of burger around. Channel the classic flavours of a cobb salad with this cobb style chicken with avocado spread topped with crispy bacon and flavourful roquefort cheese. If you aren't sure if your avocados are ripe, try prying the stem gently. If it pops off easily and you can see green beneath, it's ripe!

And channel the flavours of a campfire with delightfully chewy s'mores chocolate chip cookies, stuffed with marshmallow and chocolate. No, you can't really make these on the grill, but visit 20minutesupperclub.com/metro to find these recipes plus an incredible barbecue dessert called Plankies — created by Ted Reader, it features Twinkies and nutella.

Grilled Eggplant

SERVES 2
PREP TIME: 10 MINUTES
COOKING TIME: 30 MINUTES
RECIPE DEVELOPER: KIRSTEN ERNST, VANCOUVER, B.C.

INGREDIENTS:

- 1 large eggplant
- 1 cup feta cheese
- Juice of 1/2 - 1 lemon (to taste)
- 1 tomato, seeded, and diced
- 1/2 or 1 small red chili, seeded, and finely sliced (to taste)
- 1/2 cup mint, chopped (reserve small amount to sprinkle on top for garnish)
- Olive oil
- Salt and ground black pepper to taste

METHOD:

1. Preheat barbecue. Slice eggplant, lengthwise, about ¼-inch thick. Rub olive oil on each piece, both sides. Grill slices on barbecue, marking with crisscrosses, until just tender. Place slices on baking sheet lined with parchment paper. Sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper. Let cool. In bowl, combine crumbled feta cheese with lemon juice to taste, tomatoes, mint, salt and pepper to taste.

2. On each slice of eggplant, put approx. 1/4 cup of feta mixture, and roll up. Put all rolled slices in a row on platter. 3. Sprinkle top with reserved chopped mint.

Cobb Style Chicken with Avocado Spread

SERVES 4
PREP TIME: 15 MINUTES
COOKING TIME: 10 MINUTES
RECIPE DEVELOPER: PAULA BOWMAN

INGREDIENTS:

- 8 slices bacon
- 1 1/2 lb ground chicken
- 1/4 cup finely diced onion
- 1/4 cup coarsely chopped watercress leaves, plus extra sprigs for garnish
- 2 Tbsp crumbled roquefort cheese, plus more for garnish, if desired
- 1 Tbsp dijon mustard
- 1 tsp kosher salt, plus more for avocado mixture
- 1 tsp worcestershire sauce
- 1 avocado, peeled and pit removed
- 1 Tbsp lemon juice
- 1/4 tsp minced garlic
- 2 Tbsp olive oil, plus more for grilling
- 4 hamburger buns
- 1 tomato, cut into 4 slices

METHOD:

1. Preheat a grill to high.

2. In a non-stick skillet, set over high heat, cook bacon until crispy. Drain on paper towels and set aside.

3. Meanwhile, in a large bowl, combine chicken, onion, watercress leaves, cheese, mustard, salt and Worcestershire and mix gently. With lightly oiled or wet hands, form mixture into 4 (6oz) burgers, about 3/4-inch thick, and set aside.

4. In the small bowl of a food processor, combine avocado, lemon juice and garlic and process until smooth. With the motor running, add oil and process until combined; season to taste with salt and pepper and set aside.

5. Lightly brush both sides of burgers with olive oil and place burgers on hot grill. Cook, flipping once until cooked through, about 4 to 5 minutes per side. Place buns on grill and lightly toast on both sides, about 1 minute and set aside.

6. To assemble burgers, divide avocado mixture among bottom half of each bun and spread evenly. Top with chicken burgers followed by bacon, tomato, watercress sprigs, Roquefort if desired, and cover with remaining buns.

S'mores Chocolate Chip Cookies

MAKES 38 COOKIES
PREP TIME: 20 MINUTES
COOKING TIME: 10 MINUTES
RECIPE DEVELOPER: RHIANNON BANDA-SCOTT

INGREDIENTS:
- 11/2 cup all-purpose flour
- 3/4 cup graham crackers smashed into tiny pieces
- 1 tsp baking soda
- 1 tsp salt
- 1 dash cinnamon
- 1 dash nutmeg
- 1 cup softened unsalted butter
- 3/4 cup dark brown sugar
- 3/4 cup white sugar
- 1 tsp real vanilla extract seeds from one vanilla bean
- 2 large eggs at room temperature
- 1 3/4 cups chocolate chunks
- 2 cups mini marshmallows
- 1 – 2 Hershey Milk chocolate bars, in pieces

METHOD:

1. Preheat your oven to 375°F and line a baking sheet with parchment paper. In a medium bowl, combine flour, graham cracker crumbs, baking soda, salt, cinnamon, nutmeg and stir until combined. Beat together butter, sugars and vanilla extract in a larger bowl until creamy and smooth. Add in your eggs, blending on medium speed until fully incorporated.

2. Beat in the flour mixture to the butter mixture, beating on medium speed until combined well. Pour in the chocolate chips and stir with a spoon. Covering your hands on a bit of flour, roll 1 – 2 tablespoons worth of dough into a ball and place on the parchment paper. You may be able to fit only 9 cookies on one baking sheet.

3. Bake for 4 minutes in a preheated oven and remove from heat. Place as many marshmallows and Hershey chocolate chunks into each cookie before returning to the oven to bake. Continuing baking for approximately 4. more minutes or until the marshmallows start to puff out slightly. Cool on baking sheet for 10 minutes until cooling completely on a wire rack. Keep covered in an airtight container for up to three days.

Salsa Shrimp Melts are a tasty, good-looking finger food to serve at a summer party, such as a bridal shower or graduation.

Fancy no-bake dishes

If you're hosting a bridal shower, a graduation or engagement party this spring and summer, you'll want the food to be served to be super special.

And although many hosts will rely on a caterer to provide the goodies, here are two magnificent recipes to make and serve.

Salsa Shrimp Melts

This recipe can be double or tripled depending on the number of guests. They will be a treat at any event.

MAKES 16 TO 20 PIECES

INGREDIENTS:
- 125 g (4 oz) frozen cooked salad or cocktail shrimp, thawed
- 50 ml (1/4 cup) salsa
16 to 20 crackers or baked tortilla chips
- 125 ml (1/2 cup) shredded Monterey Jack or mozzarella cheese

METHOD:

Preheat oven or toaster oven to 200 C (400 F).

Drain shrimp, pat dry and cut into small pieces. In a bowl, combine shrimp and salsa. Spoon evenly on top of crackers. Place on baking sheet. Sprinkle cheese evenly over shrimp mixture.

Bake in oven or toaster oven for about 3 minutes or until cheese is melted. (Recipe source: Dairy Farmers of Canada, dairygoodness.ca).

Strawberry Margarita Cake

The cake looks impressive and there is no baking involved. If you can locate the harder-to-find large-size dessert shell, use it.

MAKES 10 SERVINGS

INGREDIENTS:
- 15 ml (1 Tbsp) unflavoured gelatin (7 g envelope)
- 1 can (250 ml) frozen concentrated margarita mixer, thawed and undiluted
- 500 ml (2 cups) sliced locally grown strawberries
- 1 pkg of 6 cake dessert shells (142 g/5 oz)
- 30 to 45 ml (2 to 3 tbsp) orange-flavoured liqueur, rum, tequila or orange juice
- 250 ml (1 cup) whipping cream
- 45 ml (3 tbsp) granulated sugar
- 5 ml (1 tsp) vanilla

Strawberry Margarita Cake.

Topping
- 500 ml (2 cups) sliced strawberries

METHOD:

In a very small saucepan, sprinkle gelatin over 50 ml (1/4 cup) cold water; let stand for 2 minutes. Heat over low heat, stirring constantly, until dissolved, about 1 minute. Let cool.

Meanwhile, puree undiluted margarita mixer with strawberries until smooth. Pour into a large bowl. Stir in gelatin mixture. Refrigerate, stirring occasionally, until starting to thicken. Start checking at 30 minutes; it should not be so thick that you can't fold in whipped cream.

Trim rim from shells to make flat cakes, reserving rims. Place shells in 20- to 23-cm (8- to 9-inch) springform pan, filling holes with rim bits. Press to make even layer. Brush with orange liqueur.

In a bowl, whip cream with sugar and vanilla until peaks form when beaters are lifted. Stir one-third into thickened strawberry mixture. Fold in remaining whipped cream. Pour onto cake; tap pan on counter to remove any air bubbles. Refrigerate for at least 4 hours but preferably overnight.

Serve cake topped with berries. (Recipe source: Foodland Ontario).

Ontario bars will start serving alcohol at 10 a.m. from June 11 to July 11 during the World Cup.

Pass a cold one

Ontario can serve booze at 10 a.m. for World Cup

Pass a cold one — soccer fans across Ontario will be able to hoist a brew an hour earlier to cheer on their favourite team during the World Cup.

The province has decided to follow Toronto's lead and temporarily change drinking hours so soccer fans can celebrate in style, Ontario Minister of Consumer Services Sophia Aggelonitis announced Sunday.

"This is great news for Ontario's World Cup fans," said Aggelonitis, who will be rooting for Greece to take the trophy.

"Hockey may be Canada's national sport, but soccer's popularity is steadily growing in Ontario — and this special approval will allow people to celebrate the excitement of the World Cup," she said in a statement.

The province's 17,000 licensed bars and restaurants will be able to open and start serving alcohol at 10 a.m. instead of 11 a.m. from June 11 to July 11 – unless a municipality objects in writing to the Alcohol and Gaming Commission of Ontario.

South Africa is hosting the tournament, and there's a six-hour time difference with Ontario, so some games will begin at 10 a.m. Eastern time, but others will start as early as 7:30 a.m.

"I feel ecstatic. Let's play ball" said Toronto deputy mayor Joe Pantalone when he heard the news.

It was Pantalone who got the ball rolling, when he came up with the idea to let the city's drinking establishments start serving booze an hour earlier to line up with the start of some of the games. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vino to go with your grill

LiquidAssets

Peter Rockwell

metronews.ca/liquidassets

Though the cavemen developed lots of useful things (the wheel, fire, the pointed stick), it's possible their most important offering to modern man was the invention of the first barbecue. Okay, so while what I call barbecue was more like survival to them, their original appreciation of a nicely grilled slab of beef still resonates all the way up to my back deck.

When picking a wine match, keep things balanced, fruit forward and not too expensive. There's no reason to spend a bundle on a bottle of vino — especially if you're into wild and expressive sauce and marinades. (Both of which can wreak havoc on a liquid partner).

In South America, where they grill breakfast, lunch and dinner, Argentina is the barbecue champ. True as that may be, I think there's a convincing case for Chilean reds.

The Carmen 2007 Cabernet Sauvignon ($10.95 - $13.99) takes the classic grill grape and massages it into a rich, black berry-infused charmer; while the Concha y Toro 2007 Casillero del Diablo Shiraz ($11.95 - $13.99) puts a slight Aussie spin on shiraz by injecting a touch of spice into its ripe and rounded flavour.

Prices reflect the range across the country. Some products may not be available in all provinces.

Real Ice Cream, Real Taste

"Life would be easier if we made cans of peas!" laughs Penny Chapman. Penny is President and co-owner of Chapman's Ice Cream, with her husband, David. Every day she samples ice cream produced at their Markdale, Ontario manufacturing plant. And every day she reads emails and takes phone calls from customers across Canada, ensuring the ice cream tastes as good to them as it does to her.

Customer feedback means everything to Chapman's. When the company was founded, nearly 40 years ago, people didn't expect to see local brands of ice cream for sale. Penny and David made their mark by showing consumers what buying local could really mean. "We brought out 22 flavours when most companies had four," Penny remembers. "We made ice cream that a family could afford. We listened to consumers, and so we grew and grew."

Chapman's tapped into a burgeoning movement—a new desire among Canadians for dairy products made from 100% Canadian milk, renowned for its high quality, purity and great taste. "Consumers want honesty," Penny says. "They want to know what they're buying, and if given the opportunity to do so, they'll usually buy Canadian. But not everyone knows what to look for. A company importing ingredients from other countries won't advertise it. A company making products from vegetable oil instead of butter fat won't want consumers to notice. Chapman's uses entirely Canadian dairy products to make our ice cream, and that's why our packaging has the 100% Canadian Milk symbol clearly displayed."

For recipes and more info on 100% Canadian milk, go to metronews.ca/canadianmilk

For Penny and David Chapman, that symbol means their customers get what they pay for. And they're paying for more than a food product. "Ice cream makes memories," says Penny. "You buy it for birthday parties, anniversaries—even in tough times, it's a treat you can afford. We're proud to bring such fun into peoples' lives. You can't do that with a can of peas."

Alice In Wonderland

Director: Tim Burton

THE CURIOUSER AND curiouser thing about Tim Burton's Alice in Wonderland is how he actually manages to find new wonderment in this oft-told tale. Burton assigns order and drama to Lewis Carroll's dream fantasy.

The narrative now has a real arc, complete with prologue and epilogue, that gives meaning to Alice's adventures and also gives her a greater hand in her own destiny. This new Alice In Wonderland, is, in a word, frabjous. That's a Carrollian term Wikipedia defines as "possibly a blend of fair, fabulous and joyous." I couldn't have muttered a better utterance.

Say goodbye to the old Much

TheAudioFiles

Bryan Borzykowski

metronews.ca/music

Like millions of Canadians who grew up in the '80s and '90s, I learned a lot about this country's diverse music scene by watching MuchMusic.

I still remember the first time I saw Our Lady Peace's Naveed, and the moment I discovered Sloan through the hilarious wedding-themed video for Everything You've Done Wrong. It was an important channel growing up and, again, like a lot of Canucks, I've been saddened by its move away from music videos to vapid reality TV programs, like A Shot At Love with Tila Tequila.

But despite MuchMusic's love of American programming, the network — currently owned by CTVglobemedia — continues to help fund Canadian-made music videos via MuchFACT (previously VideoFACT). That could soon change. CTV has asked the CRTC to reduce its financial commitment to MuchFACT from seven per cent of its revenue to 3.5 per cent.

Some people will see this as yet another sign that MuchMusic does not want to play videos. Let them strip the station of every single music video if that's what they want. Because it has dutifully promoted Canadian culture for three decades, it's easy to forget MuchMusic is not the CBC. It's purpose is to make money and the reality is that if MuchMusic devoted as much time to playing music videos today as it did 15 years ago, it could be in trouble.

Nowadays, more and more people are discovering music videos online. While I have fond memories of the station, its original purpose is being rendered irrelevant. (If you really like watching videos on TV, tune into AUX TV.)

What concerns me most about CTV's CRTC application is that artists will potentially have fewer opportunities to get videos funded. Beverly McKee, MuchFACTs executive director, admits that if the cut happens, and her organization doesn't make any adjustments, there will be less money to go around. However, because MuchFACT's funding is based on a percentage of the station's revenues, if the station makes more money because of the programming change, MuchFACT could benefit.

Tila Tequila

There are still other places musicians can get money. FACTOR, for instance, is a government-funded organization that helps artists pay for demos, albums and touring, and offers artists up to $20,000 to make music videos. Other local and regional bodies provide marketing or video-specific funding.

Whatever happens, music videos will be around forever; bands will find ways to make them. Relying on a television station to help Canadian artists — and fans learn about new music — is becoming a thing of the past.

And that's fine with me. I said goodbye to MuchMusic a long time ago.

Shorts fest all about balance

Now in its 16th year, the Worldwide Short Film Festival has not only become the largest annual programme of less-than-feature-length films and videos in North America, but also maintained a dedication to showcasing original work — no easy feat at a time when amateur and professional filmmakers alike are inclined to upload their material to the Internet.

"We try to keep that in balance," says WSFF's programming manager Tania Reilly. "Our rules (about showing films that have screened online) are not hard and fast, because the venue that we provide, with a big screen, big sound, and the chance for a post-screening Q & A, simply goes beyond what people can experience on YouTube."

Understanding precisely where to slot a film — or figuring out which pieces will complement each other — is a challenge for any film fest. But it's especially pertinent at WSFF, where submissions range from big-budget productions like Higglety-Pigglety Pop (a stop-motion animation featuring voice work by Meryl Streep) to aggressively modest one-minute pieces captured on a camera phone. "With more than 4,000 submissions, we can always bank on finding the thematic needles in the haystack of DVDs," says Reilly.

• The Worldwide Short Film Festival begins today.

@BrettRatner Actors I want to work with: Ted Levine,F. Murray Abraham,Danny Huston,Gong Li, Mickey Rourke.
@stephenfry I shouldn't say so, but some of the most interesting people at this party are those crowded outside on the pavement smoking
@SarahKSilverman What's the plan with underwater cities? Are we getting them?

Battle brewing over Hopper's estate

LET'S HOPE THERE'S A SPEEDY RESOLUTION. TOO SOON? (IT WAS BETWEEN THAT AND AN EQUALLY BAD EASY RIDER REFERENCE) A potential war is brewing over Dennis Hopper's estate, now that the iconic actor has passed away, according to TMZ. He had been trying to divorce his fifth wife, Victoria Hopper, since January, but the divorce was not finalized before his death. Under the conditions of their prenuptial agreement, Victoria is entitled to 25 percent of Dennis' estate as well as a $250,000 US life insurance payout if they were married and living together at the time of his death, according to the website. Dennis' lawyer plans to argue that since she was on the same property but staying in a separate house, she was not in fact living with him. "She said she would challenge it, and I fully expect her to do so." METRO WORLD NEWS

Gaga calls the ghostbusters

UNFORTUNATELY, THE MACHINERY WENT CRAZY WHEN IT GOT NEAR HER COSTUME RACK, STARTED SMOKING, AND MELTED INTO A VISCOUS GOO Lady Gaga is apparently so afraid of spirits from beyond the grave that she's spent more than $4,000 US on ghost-detecting equipment to sweep the backstage area at London's 02 Arena before she show there Sunday, according to the Mirror. Allegedly telling assistants she is terrified of "bad energy," Gaga instructed them to purchase the equipment from a local ghost-busting firm. "Her aide said the gear had to be robust as they were taking it on the road — so they must be doing this everywhere Lady Gaga is performing," a source at the firm says. METRO WORLD NEWS

Cyrus stirs up speculation

AND THE COGS IN THE DISNEY MACHINE KEEP A-SPINNIN' Miley Cyrus can't stop teasing fans with details about her past with Nick Jonas. Though she's happily dating her Last Song co-star Liam Hemsworth, Cyrus couldn't help dropping a reference to Jonas during a recent concert in Portugal while introducing her song, Full Circle. "It's about two people. They're always gonna come back together no matter what anyone says or the bad people that try to keep you apart," she told the crowd, according to JustJared. "Surprise surprise, it's about a Jonas brother — You didn't hear that."

The Duchess disses rich Saudi prince

A MODEL OF INTERNATIONAL DIPLOMACY Disgraced royal Sarah Ferguson is in desperate need of money, but apparently she's not that desperate, as she turned down an offer of $4.3 million US from a Saudi prince, according to her biographer, Allan Starkie. "I introduced her to a member of the Saudi royal family who was willing to pay (her debt) off completely," Starkie tells Page Six. "I arranged for Sarah to visit him. He met her alone, clad in flowing robes and a lascivious grin. When he tried to kiss her, she fled home and quickly called me, referring to the fellow dismissively as 'Rubber Lips,' indicating that when those lips sprung forward and plastered themselves upon her mouth, 'it felt like extricating oneself from a suction cup' as she pulled free."

Metro Recipe of the Day

Corn Country Croquettes

INGREDIENTS:

6 large hard-boiled eggs
284 ml can cream-style corn
1/3 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 tsp onion powder
1/4 tsp each salt and pepper
1/4 cup 1% milk
2 tbsp minced parsley
1 cup seasoned fine dry bread crumbs
2 large eggs, lightly beaten
2 tbsp canola oil

METHOD:

1. Halve eggs. Discard 3 yolks. Finely chop remaining yolks and all egg whites; set aside. In small pot, combine corn, flour, onion powder, salt and pepper. Stir in milk. Cook, stirring, 5 minutes or until thickened.
2. Pour mixture into large bowl. Stir in eggs and parsley. Cover and refrigerate 1 hour.
3. Preheat oven to 300°F (150°C). Spread bread crumbs on plate. In shallow bowl, place beaten eggs. Carefully drop about 1/4 cup chilled corn mixture onto crumbs. Shape into 1-cm-thick patty. Coat patty with bread crumbs, then with beaten eggs, and again with crumbs. Repeat for 8 patties.
4. In 25-cm skillet, heat 1 tbsp oil over moderately high heat. Add 4 patties and cook 8 minutes or until golden, turning frequently. Transfer to baking sheet, cover with foil, and place in oven to keep warm. Repeat with remaining oil and remaining patties.

ARIES ♈
MARCH 21-APRIL 20
No matter who you manage to shock or offend today no one will be able to deny that you are speaking the truth as you see it.

TAURUS ♉
APRIL 21-MAY 21
You'll be amazed by some of the ideas and images that dance through your head over the next 24 hours.

GEMINI ♊
MAY 22-JUNE 21
Chances are you will upset someone who represents all the things you dislike about the way the world is run. Someone has to rock the boat a little.

CANCER ♋
JUNE 22-JULY 22
Every fiber of your being is telling you to do something dramatic but, admit it, you're a little bit afraid. Have faith in your intuition.

LEO ♌
JULY 23-AUG 23
You may be in one of your more outrageous moods at the moment, but remember that if you strike too radical a pose you will have to live up to it.

VIRGO ♍
AUG 24-SEPT 22
You will learn something about yourself today, something you have conveniently managed to overlook for quite some time.

LIBRA ♎
SEPT 23-OCT 23
Someone you thought you knew everything about will turn out to be more unusual than you suspected. Try not to be too judgmental.

SCORPIO ♏
OCT 24-NOV 22
Even if you are the kind of Scorpio who only feels safe in familiar surroundings, you will be tempted by an exciting new offer.

SAGITTARIUS ♐
NOV 23-DEC 21
Don't waste time discussing what you intend to do with other people because they will only try to make you change your mind.

CAPRICORN ♑
DEC 22-JAN 20
Why is it so hard to accept that a loved one has ideas of their own? You don't have to agree on everything. Have you not heard that opposites attract?

AQUARIUS ♒
JAN 21-FEB 18
What happens tomorrow, and the day and the week and the month after that, depends on the decisions you make over the next few hours.

PISCES ♓
FEB 19-MARCH 20
Because you are sensitive by nature it comes as a surprise to some people when you act tough or refuse to back down.

Example: $10,000 purchase price, after tax price is $11,200 ($10,000 plus $1,200 applicable taxes). After applying $1,500 credit, after tax price is $9,700 ($1,327.50 reduced purchase price plus $172.50 applicable taxes), with the $1,500 credit being the $1,327.50 reduction from the purchase price and the $172.50 reduction in taxes which would have otherwise been payable on the full purchase price. $1,500 Bonus available to: (i) current GMAC Lease customers; or (ii) current owners of a Saturn, SAAB, Pontiac or Hummer. $1,000 Bonus available only to customers who currently own a GM vehicle and are not eligible for the $1,500 Bonus. To be eligible for a GM Owner Loyalty Bonus, customer's GM vehicle must be registered and insured (in Canada) in their name for the previous consecutive six months. $1,000/$1,500 Bonus may be applied towards the purchase/finance/lease of an eligible new 2009/2010/2011 Model Year Chevrolet, Buick, GMC or Cadillac vehicle, delivered between 03/08/10-06/30/10. Ineligible vehicles: Aveo, Camaro, Cobalt, Corvette ZR1, Equinox, Terrain, all Pontiac, Saturn, Saab, and Hummer vehicles, and all medium duty trucks. Offer applies to new or demonstrator models. Dealer order or trade may be required. Offer is transferable to a family member living within the same household (proof of address required). As part of the transaction, dealer may request documentation and may contact GM to verify eligibility. This offer may not be redeemed for cash. This offer may not be combined with certain other consumer incentives available on GM vehicles. See your local GM dealer for details. GM reserves the right to amend or terminate this offer and/or the program for any reason in whole or in part at any time without prior notice. ▼▼To qualify for GM Canada's Cash For Clunkers incentive, you must qualify for the Retire Your Ride Program, supported by The Government of Canada, and you must turn in a 1995 model year or older vehicle that is in running condition and has been registered and properly insured in your name for the last 6 months (12 months in B.C.). Upon Government confirmation of vehicle eligibility under the Retire Your Ride Program, GM Canada will provide a manufacturer to consumer incentive towards the purchase/finance/lease of a new eligible 2010 MY GM vehicle, excluding all Pontiac, Saturn, Saab and Hummer vehicles, Chevrolet Aveo and Cobalt and Medium Duty trucks, in an amount ranging from $750 to $3,000, depending on the model purchased. Incentive applied after taxes. GM Canada's Cash For Clunkers incentive is only available to customers who take delivery between May 6, 2010 and June 30, 2010, and may not be combined with certain other incentives available on GM vehicles. By participating in this program you will not be eligible for any trade-in value for your vehicle. See your participating GM dealer for additional program conditions and details. If you successfully complete the Retire Your Ride program, you will be eligible for a $300 cash incentive from the Canadian Government. Residents of Northwest Territories, Yukon or Nunavut are excluded from the Government's Retire Your Ride program and are therefore ineligible for GM Canada's Cash For Clunkers incentive. Some conditions apply. Visit www.retireyourride.ca (www.scrapit.ca for residents of B.C.) <http://www.retireyourride.ca/> for more information.
